

MRS. WILSON'S TEMPTING MENUS FOR DAY'S PICNIC

September is Glorious Month for Out of Doors, and Dainty Repast Adds to Outing's Pleasure

By MRS. M. A. WILSON
The winners of the PRIZE MENU CONTEST for last week have been announced. Three prizes are offered each week for the best menu for a dollar and a half dinner for four people.

First $2.50
Second, $1.00
Third, $1.00

Rules: The foods used must be staple, and the season. Each menu must be accompanied by a sales slip showing the cost of all the materials.

Address all menus to MRS. WILSON'S MENU CONTEST EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER INDEPENDENCE SQUARE

Now to prepare luncheon menu No. 2 for a party of six or eight you will need One pound of veal to salt.

Two cups of sliced pickles, One pound of cooked ham, Six green peppers, Two bunches of watercress.

One pound of cheddar or store cheese, Six potatoes for salad, Cake.

To prepare the ham and green pepper sandwiches cut the tops from the peppers and remove the seeds, then add Two small onions, The ham.

Put through the food chopper and use the medium fine knife. Turn into a bowl and add One-half cup of mayonnaise dressing, One tablespoon of lemon juice.

Mix thoroughly and then spread the bread lightly with butter. Then spread the prepared paste, lay flat slices of bread, and cut into triangles and wrap in wax paper.

Watercress and Cheese Sandwiches Wash the cress and sort over very carefully, then put the well-washed cress, the cheese cut into small pieces, two green peppers and two small onions through the food chopper. Turn into a bowl and add

One-half teaspoon of salt, One-half teaspoon of paprika, One teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, One-half cup of mayonnaise dressing.

Mix and then spread between the lightly buttered bread cut into triangles, wrap in wax paper and then pack into the cartons.

Cut the cake in individual portions and wrap in wax paper. Take along a few sandwiches made of bread and butter with a few hard-boiled eggs for the odd one who doesn't like these delicious ham or cheese sandwiches.

Often times the family just feel that the meat sandwich is not what they have, the Scotch egg, a tea sandwich, using dry bread and finely minced raisins and finely chopped peanuts.

Use a variety of apricots and prunes, chopped fine, adding a little lemon juice.

Do the same with tomatoes, bread and butter and the tart, while the arrangements for the coffee can be divided with the balance of the party; use paper napkins and cups and also the paper spoons for fork, and after the luncheon all may be gathered together and either buried beneath the leaves on the roadside or burned.

Mrs. P. C. Duncan, Nineteenth and Sedgley Ave.

MENU Crackers Tomato Soup Stringbeans Potatoes, sliced Tomatoes and Scallions Radishes Bread and Butter Coffee

SALES SLIP Soup of choice, per can. $1.11 Crackers, one-quarter pound. .08

Mrs. Anne Peirson, 4329 Lancaster Ave.

MENU Scallops Princess of Veal New Peas Bread and Butter Ice Tea

SALES SLIP Scallops $3.02 Stew of veal (200 lb.) 2 lb. .40

Mrs. F. Kenneth Moore, Norristown, Pa.

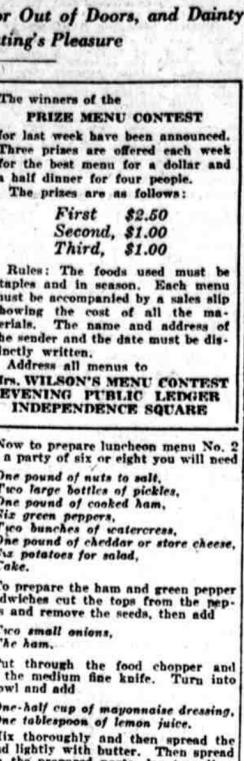

MENU Asparagus and Egg (instead of Meat) Creamed Potatoes Boiled Swiss Chard Bacon Fat Flavoring Lettuce French Dressing Fruit Cornsack Iced or Hot Tea

SALES SLIP Three oranges $1.10 One grapefruit .10

Mrs. F. M. T. Riverton.

MENU Princess of Veal With Potatoes and Texas Onions Little Biscuits Radishes Lettuce and Tomato Salad Cherry Hollypop Coffee or Tea

THE EMBROIDERED SERGE FROCK

Camera Craft Studio, N. Y.

CARELESS HEARTS

By HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR

(Copyright, 1920, by Hazel Deyo Batchelor) She did not doubt that Alice envied her and yet when she thought of living as Alice lived, the petty round of domestic trifles to see to the children to manage, Jim to placate and appease and to be in thrill of hope, no romance to lighten the drudgery, she shuddered and did not blame Alice for envying.

A Visit to Alice Diana and Julian Long, after three years of married life, decide on a divorce. They have not quarreled; they have simply been bored to death with each other, and Diana disappears immediately from the old life, taking a position as designer with Madame Naidi, who keeps a dressmaking establishment. What they have both set out to find is the romance, the thrill of the heart of life which they have missed somehow. Diana is fascinated by a certain young man, her son at first, while Julian, after a fleeting friendship with a selfish little debutante, is really interested in her.

It was a cold night and she had three carefully wrapped parcels for the children and Alice, in her arms. She found Alice alone and in a rather ugly blanket bath robe. Jim was at the toilet, Alice explained.

"I never expected to see a soul like you," she said. "I thought you were never coming to see me." Alice said when the two women were alone in the living room, and Alice had stowed the packages safely away. "Diana, you never looked so well. To me all about you, you must have an interesting kind of life." Alice's tone was wistful as she said this.

Diana had removed her fur coat, one of Julian's last winter extravaganzas, and in her little blue serge dress with its white collar and cuffs she looked like a girl of nineteen. Alice who was just Diana's age looked ten years older.

"I don't know," Alice said. "I thought you were never coming to see me." Alice said when the two women were alone in the living room, and Alice had stowed the packages safely away. "Diana, you never looked so well. To me all about you, you must have an interesting kind of life." Alice's tone was wistful as she said this.

MRS. WILSON'S ANSWERS My dear Mrs. Wilson: I wish to prepare some butter in salt brine now for use next winter when the prices will be higher. Will you kindly inform me what proportions of salt and water are for this purpose?

Some years ago I preserved creamery butter sweet and fresh for eight months by this method but have forgotten the proportions of salt and water used.

MRS. F. E. W. Scald and cool your crock. Place one-inch layer of salt in the bottom of the crock and then line with cheese cloth. Place the butter in layers about two inches thick. Sprinkle lightly with salt, having the last layer about two inches from the top. Fold the cheese cloth over the butter and place a top layer of salt. Now pour over the butter

One quart of cold water, One-half teaspoon of salt per. Boil and then use before using and cover the crock. Set in a cool place.

My dear Mrs. Wilson—What can be done with elderberries and wild cherries? I have a quantity of each, and if possible, would like the receipt for it.

MISS A. A. J. No wine recipes can be given for wine, as it is prohibited by law. Make jelly, marmalade or spiced jam of these fruits. I enclose the cherry recipe of June 19.

The Question Corner Today's Inquiries 1. Describe a new ingenious device for merry-making at a wedding or party.

2. What use can be made of left-over pieces of material used to make a fall suit?

3. In what way is a charming hat of stiff silk or taffeta made? How can a striking vase for holding anias be made?

4. It is correct to wear a dark gorgette crepe dress for traveling?

5. What is done with the fullness in some of the newest skirts?

Yesterday's Answers 1. When the light above the bureau is so high that it casts shadows over the lower part of the face, a clear reflection in the mirror may be gained by placing a hand-glass face up on the bureau to reflect the light on the face.

2. Plumes and feathers are in a new mode of velvet which is woven to look like feathers and is used to trim hats and cloaks.

3. If shoes are wrapped in soft paper then folded into a bag garment like a kimono, they will remain stationary and will not muss other articles in a suitcase.

4. The fabric top-coat, trimmed or combined with fur, is expected to be fashionable for next winter.

THE EMBROIDERED SERGE FROCK

Camera Craft Studio, N. Y.

CARELESS HEARTS

By HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR

(Copyright, 1920, by Hazel Deyo Batchelor) She did not doubt that Alice envied her and yet when she thought of living as Alice lived, the petty round of domestic trifles to see to the children to manage, Jim to placate and appease and to be in thrill of hope, no romance to lighten the drudgery, she shuddered and did not blame Alice for envying.

A Visit to Alice Diana and Julian Long, after three years of married life, decide on a divorce. They have not quarreled; they have simply been bored to death with each other, and Diana disappears immediately from the old life, taking a position as designer with Madame Naidi, who keeps a dressmaking establishment. What they have both set out to find is the romance, the thrill of the heart of life which they have missed somehow. Diana is fascinated by a certain young man, her son at first, while Julian, after a fleeting friendship with a selfish little debutante, is really interested in her.

It was a cold night and she had three carefully wrapped parcels for the children and Alice, in her arms. She found Alice alone and in a rather ugly blanket bath robe. Jim was at the toilet, Alice explained.

"I never expected to see a soul like you," she said. "I thought you were never coming to see me." Alice said when the two women were alone in the living room, and Alice had stowed the packages safely away. "Diana, you never looked so well. To me all about you, you must have an interesting kind of life." Alice's tone was wistful as she said this.

Diana had removed her fur coat, one of Julian's last winter extravaganzas, and in her little blue serge dress with its white collar and cuffs she looked like a girl of nineteen. Alice who was just Diana's age looked ten years older.

"I don't know," Alice said. "I thought you were never coming to see me." Alice said when the two women were alone in the living room, and Alice had stowed the packages safely away. "Diana, you never looked so well. To me all about you, you must have an interesting kind of life." Alice's tone was wistful as she said this.

MRS. WILSON'S ANSWERS My dear Mrs. Wilson: I wish to prepare some butter in salt brine now for use next winter when the prices will be higher. Will you kindly inform me what proportions of salt and water are for this purpose?

Some years ago I preserved creamery butter sweet and fresh for eight months by this method but have forgotten the proportions of salt and water used.

MRS. F. E. W. Scald and cool your crock. Place one-inch layer of salt in the bottom of the crock and then line with cheese cloth. Place the butter in layers about two inches thick. Sprinkle lightly with salt, having the last layer about two inches from the top. Fold the cheese cloth over the butter and place a top layer of salt. Now pour over the butter

One quart of cold water, One-half teaspoon of salt per. Boil and then use before using and cover the crock. Set in a cool place.

My dear Mrs. Wilson—What can be done with elderberries and wild cherries? I have a quantity of each, and if possible, would like the receipt for it.

MISS A. A. J. No wine recipes can be given for wine, as it is prohibited by law. Make jelly, marmalade or spiced jam of these fruits. I enclose the cherry recipe of June 19.

The Question Corner Today's Inquiries 1. Describe a new ingenious device for merry-making at a wedding or party.

2. What use can be made of left-over pieces of material used to make a fall suit?

3. In what way is a charming hat of stiff silk or taffeta made? How can a striking vase for holding anias be made?

4. It is correct to wear a dark gorgette crepe dress for traveling?

5. What is done with the fullness in some of the newest skirts?

Yesterday's Answers 1. When the light above the bureau is so high that it casts shadows over the lower part of the face, a clear reflection in the mirror may be gained by placing a hand-glass face up on the bureau to reflect the light on the face.

2. Plumes and feathers are in a new mode of velvet which is woven to look like feathers and is used to trim hats and cloaks.

3. If shoes are wrapped in soft paper then folded into a bag garment like a kimono, they will remain stationary and will not muss other articles in a suitcase.

4. The fabric top-coat, trimmed or combined with fur, is expected to be fashionable for next winter.

WHAT'S WHAT

By HELEN DEKOR

Well-bred men and women never speak slightly of other races or creeds. Tolerance is always good form. In education there is no place for the bigot whose there is no place in public without the slightest consideration for the feelings of the rest of others.

If the young man goes to have your program filed, either have him take you to a seat first or wait for him at the dressing room door. Do not stand alone on the stage floor, if you have a chapter on (and there should be one), go to her until the young man comes for you, if you do not want to wait in the dressing room.

Dear Cynthia—Do fellows as a rule fall in love with the pretty girls, or do they fall for a girl's disposition? I am a girl of twenty years old, but I am not beautiful, by any means. But I am sure I will win the hearts of many a fellow if I am only a little more ready at any time to do anything any one else does, providing it is all right in his own mind. I have a few friends who all get jealous of me. Of what, I want to know? I am far from a vamp. Could be disposition? I have a number of men friends. KITTY.

Cynthia is sorry, but she does not know you, nor the girls you know, she is only a letter writer. Are you as nice to the girls as you are to the boys? Do you want them to join in the fun? Some boys fall in love with a beautiful face, and some with a beautiful disposition. It depends on the man.

Do Not Worry Conscience Stricken—It is well always to remember that we are answerable for our actions, words and thoughts, according to the law of Karma. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of reason, grieve over faults and sins committed in their childhood, and themselves to judge those faults as if they had been committed with the full knowledge which comes with reason. We are responsible to God for our acts according to our intention at the time of the offense. A child is seldom supposed to have use of reason or sense, right and wrong being in his seven. He tells a lie to get out of being punished, without realizing his responsibility in the matter. Many persons growing up to the full light of